

January 2016, Vol 16, No 1

We hope that you enjoyed a very pleasant festive season and we look forward to welcoming you back to the library to continue your search for those elusive family members. The library has received a freshen up over the break and we have a full program of events set up and ready to go.

The first Fridays@QFHS is Oral History: more than a name with Suzanne Mulligan. Suzanne will give you tips on collecting oral history from family members and how to preserve your research for future generations. Something I am sure we all want to do.

The first Seminar for 2016, Writing and publishing family history - a 21st century approach, is aimed at those who would like to write and publish their own family history. Noeline Kyle, Rick Valenta, and a panel of QFHS members with publishing experience, will be available to speak to you. Not to be missed. Perhaps you are not at that stage yet but I am sure lots of interesting tips will be given.

The lending library is ready for members to avail themselves of the opportunity to take a couple of books home to read at leisure. Have you browsed the print library recently? New titles are being added all the time. Some journals are now available electronically on our website. If this method of access appeals to you email Sarah Barry for a password. Don't forget to check out the CDs available to members on the network. A virtual treasure trove of information is available there. Remember, if you are struggling with your research, unsure of where to find a resource or how to operate a reader, ask a library assistant to assist you.

On Wednesday evening, 17 February, Stephanie Ryan from the State Library will speak on Finding Photographs of WW1 soldiers. All Stephanie's talks are interesting so do come along.

Don't forget to make a note in your diary for all upcoming events. We lead such busy lives it is easy to forget an event you had planned to attend.

Irish Family History Conferences 2016

The following events will combine a varied and exciting mix of research opportunities in the archives (including the National Library and National Archives in Dublin), talks from acknowledged experts and a choice of tours to a number of historic sites. For more information on both events and guidance on how to register, go here for 15-22 June or here for 4-10 September 2016.

Education - Workshops/Courses/Seminars

Seminar - Writing and publishing family history: a 21st century approach

Presenters: Noeline Kyle, Rick Valenta and a QFHS panel

Noeline writes and publishes biography, memoir, women's history, and the writing of family history. She has published two family histories: a biography of her great grandmother, Nurse Mary Kirkpatrick, and a memoir of her childhood (Ghost child: a memoir).

Rick Valenta is a geologist married to a family history enthusiast. His job for the last decade has regularly required him to produce professional quality colour-illustrated reports, press releases, and presentations. Rick will discuss using Adobe Indesign to format and print an illustrated family history document.

In the final session of this seminar, a number of published authors will share their experiences in producing books and publications.

When: 9.00am to 12.30pm 6 February 2016

Where: Queensland Baptists Conference Centre, 53 Prospect Road, Gaythorne

Cost: $15 members and $20 non-members (includes morning tea)

Adoption

Presenters: Susan Kelly and Chris Mundy

Susan Kelly and Chris Mundy from Jigsaw Queensland Inc will speak about the processes for people affected by past adoptions: accessing information about their adoption, searching for their birth relatives, and establishing contact with them. They will outline the steps needed and the roles of various government departments. During the presentation, Susan and Chris will share some of their searching tips and how they work to support clients through the anxious journey of approaching birth relatives. They will also discuss how people can apply for adoption information concerning relatives who have passed away for the purpose of family history research.

When: 10.00am to 11.30am 11 March 2016

Where: QFHS Library and Resource Centre, 58 Bellevue Avenue, Gaythorne

Cost: $11 members and $15 non-members

FamilySearch.org has indexed an additional 326,000 records from the 1891 New South Wales census.

This census lists the head of household, street address, and the number of male and female members of the household. There is also a separate column listing the "Number of Chinese and Aborigines" in the household. The collection can be searched by first name and last name. Access is free here

FamilySearch.org has created a new indexed collection of civil registration deaths from Frankfurt Germany.

These are official death records spanning the years from 1928 to 1978 including the important period during World War II. The records come from the Hessian State Archives in Marburg. The records can be searched by first name and last name. In total, there are some 567,000 records in this collection. Search here

Removal of Parish/County Reference from Property Descriptions in Queensland

The Department of Natural Resources and Mines has advised that it will be removing references to Parishes and Counties in land transactions, as this information is redundant for the unique identification of land. This will affect forms submitted to the department, and some products and datasets obtained from the department e.g. title searches.

While the formal date for this removal is 30 November 2015, it may take some time for the changes to be applied to all products and services. In the interim, these products will either show the value 'no longer used' for Parish and County or reference to Parish and County will be removed. More background information on the changes can be found on the Department of Natural Resources and Mines website

Search for Jewish Tombs lost in the Czech Republic during WWII brings back heritage

A small team of researchers has been working to reassemble a Jewish cemetery in the eastern city of Prostejov, Czech Republic, that was destroyed during the Nazi occupation. The discovery of Prostejov's lost graveyard was a result of efforts to find roughly 2,000 tombstones that were desecrated and disappeared more than 70 years ago in what was then Czechoslovakia. Now a team of genealogists and historians is working to reconstruct the plans for the cemetery, including names and other information about the people buried there. You can read more about the project here

6,300 Nazi holocaust documents found behind wall of a Budapest apartment

A vast and historically valuable trove of Holocaust-era documents, long-thought destroyed during World War II, has been found hidden in a wall cavity by a couple renovating their Budapest apartment. The haul of 6,300 documents are from a 1944 census that was a precursor to the intended liquidation of the Hungarian capital's 200,000 Jews in Nazi death camps. This census contains the names of Jews and Christians alike. Most of Budapest's Jewish population survived the war. You can read more in an article here

Matching Nicknames with Given Names

It can be hard enough to find great-grandma Jenny, without having to figure out if she could also be Jane, Janet, Jeanette, Jennett, Jennifer, or Virginia. But it is common in many genealogical records, especially more informal records such as census records and obituaries, to find your ancestors listed under names you might not expect. In many cases these names may have been the nicknames that they were known by to their family and friends.

Explore this list of common nicknames associated with popular given names to determine the various ways in which your ancestor might appear in genealogical records. Go here

United States - 2020 Census will be done by internet

The U.S. Census Bureau expects to use the Internet — plus smart phones for the next census in 2020. The primary reason for the change is to save money. The 2010 Census cost taxpayers $96 per household. The cost of taking the census has more than doubled in two decades, up from $70 per household in 2000 and $39 as recently as 1990. The 2020 Census undoubtedly would cost more if it relied on paper forms.

While the decision to move to online census forms has been made, millions of details have yet to be worked out. The current version of the Census 2020 Operational Plan may be downloaded here

Trivia

Trending baby names

A growing number of millennials are apparently naming their babies after Instagram filters. A report by Time magazine claims the most popular name derived from the photo-sharing app was Lux, which rose 75 per cent on the list of baby boy names compared to last year.

The data was reportedly gathered from 340,000 parents around the world but the findings are unofficial. Ludwig, Amaro, Reyes, Hudson and Kelvin also increased in popularity for boy names, while baby girls were named Juno, Valencia and Willow. You can read the article here

Felimina Rotundo works 11 hours day, six days a week at a Laundromat, and shows no signs of stopping anytime soon, even at the age of 100. Felimina says she likes being out and working because it “gives her something to do.” You can read more and see a video of Feimina here

Book Review

In 2009 the study, The Hidden Thread, was the first major work covering Huguenot families in Australia. Basically six families were presented but this but touched the surface of those who have Huguenot descent. Robert Nash has again taken on what he calls a "complicated task" and in A New Tapestry he has dealt ably with some 30 odd mini biographies of those with Huguenot descent. Some are household names while others would only be known in the family. Almost all the authors are descendents while their material is presented in a variety of modes. If you think that you may have Huguenot ancestry this would be an ideal work to include in your research. One might safely say that it could well be your answer.
